nual surprise of the Dallas Fair Association began to day, and while it was not as complete as its two predecessors, regarded strictly in the light of a surprise, garded strictly in the light of a surprise, an attractive one. The grandest peyrastill it served as an eye-opener to those technic display ever witnessed in Texas who thought the fair this year would not be a success.

A more perfect day for a fair opening could not have been made to order. The sua shone bright and warm, and there was just enough breeze satir to take off its wire edge and rob it of its summer-like tendency to everheat.

Dallas, awake early and stirring with the lars, was in holiday gath, and the miles and miles of bunting and thousands of flags and banners which were festioned from arches and streamed from windows, awnings and galleries, give the city look of beauty and brightness that made it very attractive. The trades display, which began marching the streets about il o'clock, was not a startling success Indeed, it was a very fit failure. There was a telerably long line-half as long, perhaps, as was seen in Fort Wort on fair and exposition. the 4-h of July, but there were no hand somely decorated wagons, and the dsplay was not at all what it was intended

The fact if the merchants all have displays at the fair grounds, and all the ex tra force they have are putting in their time there, so that they should not have been expected to get up a show for the streets.

The trades display was a mistake. After the fissee down town the crowd began to move out to the fair grounds.

There was no fiseco there. True, Governor Ross was not present to set the thing going as had been expected, but President Armstrong of the fair association did it just as well, and it dida't occupy a mitu e's time.

He refused to make a speech. Ho just pulled off the bridle, so to speak, and turaed the show over to the

A lawn tennis tournament is on the programme for the last week, and players were practicing in the courts this even-gles and chews gum all day; the callow dude with a pancity of mustache and a plethora of plug hat; the old couple from Washack, who were stirred to wonder and admiration by everything they saw; the plain, everydsy citizen-all were there, and each was filling his particular niche as full as he knew how.

And the fakir was there with his fake, and the side showman with his little show the Chances of the D moulty spreading to and big voice.

But most numerous of all are the restaurants. A number of the churches of the city have built pavilions and are taking in expense money by furnishing din-ners for the hungry. The orphane, also, were not forgotten, and Bucaner's Or-phans' Home had a booth in which lovely young ladies waited on the tables and set out estisfying substantials and tempting viands before hungry visitors, the money pesial to the Gazette. | tor which goes to feed and clothe the or Dallas, Tex , Oct. 11 -The third and phase in the "Home."

The night at the fair grounds was heartly etjoyed by about 2000 people. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated by el ctric lights and the programme was was made. Among the beautiful features of the display were: "The list famor ica," "The Alamo," "Bombaroment of Alexander," "Hindoo Snake Dance," and a number of marvelous scenes of variagated colors in fire.
